

Simply Sharing Our Stories

Sharing our hope isn't complicated, but it can be awkward. Often, we don't feel ready or we are intimidated by the potential for "hard questions." Other times we've spent our voice on subjects and issues other than the gospel and our opportunity is missed.

Ephesians 2:10 tells us that we are God's "handiwork", a word that is closely related to craftsmanship, art or poetry. We are all part of God's story. In fact, we are stewards of His story. We need to recognize that our story is not our own and we are to "steward" or share it generously with those around us.

Simply sharing our stories will help give us confidence and focus to reengage a world that desperately needs the hope we have.

Discussion Guide

1. Share a time when you felt confident talking about your faith with someone.
2. What are some concerns that you have about sharing your faith?
3. Why is it so hard or awkward to have conversations about Jesus?
4. How can simply sharing the story of your changed life help you next time you get an opportunity to share the hope you have?